SUBJECT No. 638.

Lectures on intemperance

Mr. Boregowda, Yedatore taluk

Summary of Representation.—In many persons in temperance has exceeded all limits. If steps are not taken against this evil poverty and in its wake wicked deeds are sure to spread all over the country. Instead of resorting to legal measures it would be far more fruitful if able and eloquent exponents of the evils of intemperance are appointed to deliver impressive lectures to the people on that subject.

Largely a matter for the leaders of the people

Note for orders

20/2/14

It is doubtful whether wicked people were ever made virtuous by public lectures however impressive. Public opinion and communal pressure will have greater potency

22/2/14

If the subject is repeated the answer will be as proposed last year in the Secretariat Notes. No action is needed
